Transferable skills aquired /developed during the heterogeneous architectural training
- skilled with teamwork, collaboration, accurate communication and stimulating attitude towards collegues, all as a result of working on team based, complex projects during university years
- adept in synthesizing information from different areas of speciality, culminating in a consistent final result
- microscopic attention for detail
- functional and aesthetic sensibility
- thorough understanding of user-experience concepts, since enhancing these happens to be the main ambition of architectural design, be it at the scale of small furniture, buidings or large scale urban planning
- problem-solving skills, with affinity for the simple, more subtle solutions, plausibly owing to my inclination towards mathematics
- experienced in organizing and communicating complex information and making presentations
- lucid while working in environments with pending deadlines
